

Without Rachel's help and expert advice, we probably would not have survived our most recent home-buying experience. In fact, I'm quite sure we would have given up long ago; or worse, settled for a home that we didn't absolutely love. Rachel was consistently our source of motivation and our best advocate for our home search wish list. She expertly navigated our search through the often frustrating DC real estate market guiding us from neighborhood to neighborhood to explore the many housing options. Today, we own a house that we thought we would never find and we attribute our good fortune to Rachel. -
